YUTHOK LING GOMPA EXPANSION

Project Description

Temple surface area: approximately 200 m²
Main wooden deck: approximately 250 m²
Location: Woodland area facing the Mandala
Preliminary estimated cost: approximately €250,000 / €300,00 + VAT

The project involves the creation of the new Yuthok Gompa, a meditation and teaching temple of approximately 200 m², entirely immersed within the existing woodland and designed to create a strong connection between the practice space and the surrounding natural environment

Main Deck & Integration with Existing Woodland

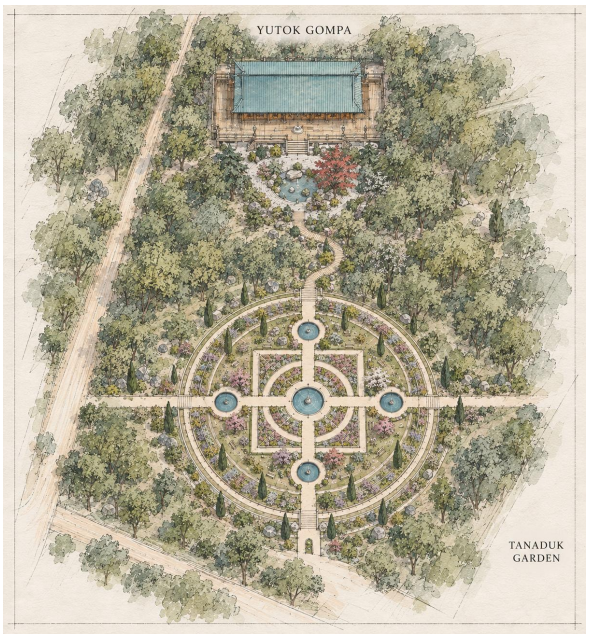

* Construction of a large wooden deck of approximately 250 m², integrated into the existing woodland
* The approximately 200 m² Gompa will be positioned directly on this platform
* The wooden flooring of the temple will continue beyond the glazed walls, creating an external deck and a natural extension of the interior space into the surrounding woodland
* The external areas of the deck will provide additional space where people can sit, meditate or listen to teachings while remaining outdoors and surrounded by nature
* Walkways and extensions of the deck will connect the Gompa with the surrounding areas

Yuthok Gompo - Temple Structure

* Approximately 200 m² of internal temple space
* Zen-inspired architectural design
* Structure surrounded by full-height glazing on all four sides, creating visual continuity between the interior of the temple and the woodland
* Glazed sections on all four sides designed to be partially openable, allowing natural ventilation and a direct connection with the outdoor environment
* Wooden flooring throughout the interior
* Underfloor heating system
* Copper-sheet roof, designed to naturally develop its characteristic turquoise-green patina over time

Indoor-Outdoor Practice Space

* Continuity between the temple and the surrounding woodland.
* The wooden floor of the Gompa will extend beyond the glazed perimeter to become part of the larger deck, enabling practitioners to sit outside the temple while still participating in teachings and practices taking place inside.
* A Temple that is physically protected while remaining visually and spatially connected to the forest on every side.
